

Startup-ish but Serious: Let's Build Something Real (and Global)

Forget the garage. We're launching lean, remote, and (eventually) legally compliant.

The vision: a small crew of sharp builders - engineers, architects, recruiters, and the occasional wizard.

We start small, execute well, get paid, and scale up like pros - without the burnout.

Phase 1: Stealth Mode with a Public Face

We'll use your polished profile to land solid gigs. You handle interviews and client-facing moments, and I'll help you prep, crush assessments, and deliver the work behind the scenes.

Think Batman and Alfred - but remote and way more GitHub.

You'll be the face of the project, I'll support execution.

We share the same cut - typically 50/50, but we'll adjust based on workload. Simple, fair, and drama-free.

You might be thinking, "Why not just do it solo and keep 100%?" 😊

The truth is, when you go it alone, you're limited by time and focus — most can only juggle one or two roles. But when we team up, there's no ceiling. You could scale far beyond that — earning 3x, 5x, or more — without burning out.

Phase 2: From Hackers to Agency

Once things click:

- We register a company
- Bring in recruiters, designers, and project leads
- Build reusable tools, take on bigger projects
- Scale what works, and make it rain (legally)